

The stormy season of the 25th Viennese Ice Dream closes with around 550,000 visitors

(Vienna, 2 March 2020) In its anniversary season, this year's Viennese Ice Dream had to overcome a number of challenges – with storms, rain and spring-like temperatures. Because, unfortunately, Petra, Ciara, Julia and Bianca don't seem to be fans of ice skating. However, the competence and many years of experience of the staff along with state-of-the-art technology proved their worth, making it possible to offer the 550,000 visitors a wonderful 9,000 m² ice-skating experience all the same.

With the popular Sky Rink ice terrace, the romantic routes through the park, the expansive areas, the two free practice areas, the eight ice stock shooting lanes and the diverse gastronomy on offer – the winter highlight of the Viennese Ice Dream was an impressive event, despite the freak weather. In particular, the chalet with its own ice stock shooting lane was very popular and hosted many events.

Free school campaign a hit again this year

Out in the fresh air, enjoying some exercise skating round the ice rink – thanks to the free campaign for all Vienna kindergartens, schools and daycare centres in the School Association, tens of thousands of Vienna's children took advantage of the offer provided by the City of Vienna once again this year.

Cuisine, service and entertainment

More seating, new lockers, four more ticket machines, an additional skate hire window and the services provided by the online shop ensured shorter waiting times and much improved convenience for visitors.

The Viennese Ice Dream offered culinary sensations to suit all tastes again this year. And what's more – organic food and culinary offerings from domestic production were part of a responsible overall concept, which, with its reusable crockery, waste system and more, resulted in this year's coveted "ÖkoEvent" award.
